While Berlin is not considered within the territory covered by the North Atlantic Treaty, an attack on the forces of any NATO member in Berlin is considered an attack which would bring into effect Article 5 of the Treaty. This is set forth in Article 2 of the Protocol to North Atlantic Treaty, signed by Council Deputies on October 22, 1951.

North Atlantic Council on October 22, 1954, adopted and made public resolution in which Council associated itself with Tripartite Declaration of October 3, 1954.
